Some title

And a small subtitle

todo: check that this demo makes sense. I've just revised the sorting approach ot make it simpler (alphabetical order of all source file paths), but it might be a breaking change for some docs, which should have their structure revised.

The headings and depth etc of `1_subfolderA`, `2_subfolderB` and `3_subfolderC` should be identical. (how to refer to headings, with internal links?)

1_subfolderA
2_subfolderB
3_subfolderC
e_file1.md
f_file2.md
```

1 Is this a suitable parent heading for the folder of the same name?

xx

1.1 should be heading 1 from 1_subfolderA (/main.md)

Note here that there is not a higher level heading, this jumps immediately into a lower heading level. This looks messy! I could add a complicated way to indicate to make this heading a different level, but instead of that I recommend to use another file to put some introductory content with a higher heading level in.

1.1.1 should be 1st heading 2 from 1_subfolderA (/main.md)

hello

1.1.2 should be 2nd heading 2 from 1_subfolderA (/main.md)

hello

1.1.3 should should be 3rd heading 2 from 1_subfolderA (/main.md)
